If your address is part of a multi-unit complex, or is a commercial property, or is on a corner, we may have a different address on our records; or, if your address is part of a brand new development, we may not yet have enrolled the new data.

However, you still may be able to find the Assessor ID No. (AIN) by entering the nearest cross streets and using the Pan & Information  tools to pan & identify individual parcels.

If you cannot locate your AIN by any of these methods, we suggest you review your deed or email us for assistance.

Please email any questions or concerns you may have to helpdesk@assessor.lacounty.gov referencing within your inquiry the property address you were searching.
